Steel couplings

The LP coupling (figure A) is a stronger, more robust coupling ring for use with high pressures and large diameters.

It is available prepared to be tightened by drill attachment, and also available as a two-part coupling ring for large diameters.

The VF coupling (fig. B) is a standard steel coupling.

Components

Components can be made to precise measurements.
Drawings can be prepared to customers' specifications.
Bends are available in different angles and diameters.
